

Working for the world's leading company in its field should give you a good feeling. Handling the business travel and corporate accounts of some of the world's top organisations should have you walking on air. And, if forming close and lasting relationships is your thing - this could well be for you.

National Account Managers

Hertz is looking for two enthusiastic National Account Managers, one will handle a leading business travel account and the other will handle a portfolio of prestigious corporate clients. As the world's leading car hire company, with an established reputation and highly regarded product, we focus on keeping the competition at bay by enhancing business partnerships with a service that goes beyond customers' expectations. We need individuals with proven success in either the business-to-business or travel sectors. Individuals with enough confidence to network effectively at head office level, individuals with a talent for making existing relationships work even more efficiently and individuals with an eye for developing profitable new business opportunities to boost our performance. Although you'll be reporting to the Business Sector Manager of our world class company, at the end of the day, you'll be accountable for the success of your accounts.

If you can convince us that your performance will keep our world No 1 position secure, then call our retained consultants now on 01483 595959.
